A TRIBUTE.

Burton E. Leavitt.

A Norwich friend writes to his legion of friends in Norwich and vicinity the announcement of the death of Burton E. Leavitt, calling it a shock and with deep feelings of sadness.

Having been closely associated with many of the younger generation of the town in his business of producing opera for church societies and fraternal organizations, he by the force of his superior mental and musical gifts, integrity of character and great capacity for selecting and controlling companies in his charge, not only brought to a successful finish artistically, but also gained the respect, admiration and love of all with whom he came in contact.

A musician of high rank himself, and a composer of recognized ability, with enormous powers for work, he bent every energy to the task before him, working often through the night to accomplish his end. It was during his college career that he produced his first opera and from that time on his mind, heart and soul were dedicated to the art he loved, and of which he was a master. His last and greatest work, upon which he had been engaged for several years, the grand opera of "Tea Te-phi," had reached completion and was copyrighted only three weeks previous to his death.

While music was his life work, being a man of broad and comprehensive ideas, he did not follow it to the exclusion of all else, but devoted much time and thought to questions of the hour.

His home was his citadel and his life there has been one of untiring devotion to those nearest and dearest to him. His great integrity of character and straightforwardness of purpose gain for him the trustworthiness of a large estate, which he held at the time of his death.

His work in Norwich has been in connection with the Universalist society, where between the years 1891 and 1896 he produced all of his operas with great success, giving the Frogs of Windham on four different occasions, eight productions of that opera alone. His latest work in Norwich was the Historical Pageant given at the 250th celebration in 1909, which was a production of no small merit, and he gave a similar open air production in New London the following year.

During his early career, when yet a boy, he played in the orchestra at the Watch Hill House, Watch Hill, with Herbert T. Miller.

From boyhood till now, not yet in middle life, he has educated, refined and given joy to tens of thousands of his fellow men, not alone by his sublime melodies, but by his own life song, which has been one divine harmony of love, thoughtfulness and kindly deeds for all who knew him.

But he is voiceless now. A fountain of harmony has ceased. We will mourn for him, we will honor him, not in words, but in the language he loved.
